

6th Annual SEATTLE RACE CONFERENCE

Movements for Reparations: Restoring Racial Justice,
Building Unity, and Healing Our Diverse Communities

Saturday, October 11th
8AM-4PM
Seattle Center
Northwest Rooms
Open to the public

Keynote Speaker: Dr. Raymond Winbush

Director of the Institute for Urban Research at Morgan State University and editor of the anthology, Should America Pay: Slavery and the Raging Debate on Reparations.

Join us for a dialogue exploring what the ongoing movements for redress mean for our diverse communities on the 20th anniversary of Redress to Japanese Americans incarcerated during WWII. Coming together across all communities of color, we will examine ways reparations can play a role in racial reconciliation, healing and in building bridges between all our communities.

Featured Exhibit: American History Exhibit – The “Unspoken Truths”. Chronicles the rich history of Africans in Africa prior to chattel slavery, the experience and the impact of chattel slavery, Jim Crow Era, and the contributions African Americans have had on scientific, cultural and technological innovations in the U.S.
